

Disabled or Mentally ill Clients Affairs

Disabled people and those younger people with learning disabilities face many challenges, as do those people suffering from mental illness. Our team will ease the burden on their carers with expert legal advice together with good practical guidance.

Peace of Mind

One of the most frequent questions our clients ask is "What provision can I make for my child when I die?" The answer is to set up a special trust created in a proper manner to fully protect your dependants. Our team has great expertise in this area and guide clients right through the process to provide complete peace of mind.

Our team have extensive experience of dealing with the affairs of those who are mentally handicapped either as a result of some long-term issue or as a result of dementia. This may involve use of a Power of Attorney or dealing with the Court of Protection and can include handling Tax and other planning matters for such people in circumstances where otherwise the person's affairs would be frozen.

But whatever our clients' needs, our experts always offer advice that is in our clients' best interests and in simple plain English.

Services include:

- > Will drafting
- > Estate administration
- > UK inheritance tax planning
- > Lasting Powers of Attorney
- > Older clients' affairs
- > Living wills
- > Trusts
- > Disabled or mentally ill clients' affairs
