

HERRINGTON & CARMICHAEL WINS PRESTIGIOUS INDUSTRY AWARD

Camberley, 22nd June 2010 – Herrington and Carmichael LLP has won a prestigious award for the quality of its training programmes.

The firm has been named winner of the Best Trainer – Small Firm Category in this year's LawCareers.Net Training & Recruitment Awards. The awards recognise the best recruiters and trainers among law firms, and were based on a large national survey of nearly 3,000 trainee and newly qualified solicitors.

Employing 80 staff at its offices in Camberley, Surrey and Wokingham, Berkshire, the firm awards two trainee solicitor contracts every year. Herrington & Carmichael provides an extensive range of legal services to business and private clients in the local area, whether their clients plan to start a company, get involved in e-commerce, buy a home, write a will, or have family or employment issues.

For those joining the legal profession the quality of their training has a huge impact on their future careers.

At Herrington & Carmichael trainees are given client work from day one, with close support from a partner or senior fee earner. In addition, all trainees are given an insight into how the firm as a whole functions together, gaining exposure and experience in a number of departments.

“We’re delighted to have won this prestigious award,” says Andrew Annette, Partner in charge of training at Herrington & Carmichael LLP.

“We have always believed that recruiting talented trainee solicitors is key to our success. We invest a lot of time and energy in finding the right people and then offering them a degree of training that not only equips them for professional life but is both varied and interesting in its content.”

Herrington & Carmichael is in the process of recruiting two trainee solicitors for 2011. Interviews will be conducted in the next two months.
