

Powers of Attorney

Our experts help clients arrange Power of Attorney, giving them peace of mind knowing that their affairs will be properly managed.

Everyman

Most people associate Power of Attorney with the elderly, but in fact any person can and should have a Power of Attorney. This allows a third party to look after your affairs if for any reason you are unavailable, however if mental capacity were lost then a normal Power of Attorney ceases to be valid.

Lasting Powers of Attorney

In recent years Enduring Powers of Attorney (EPA) have been popular. However EPAs have been superseded by Lasting Powers of Attorney (LPA) and no new EPAs can be created. These LPAs may be used to extend the authority of Attorneys to deal not only with financial affairs but also with personal welfare decisions.

Whatever route our clients choose they all benefit from plain speaking advice and have peace of mind knowing that their affairs will be properly managed.

Services include:

- › Will drafting
- › Estate administration
- › UK inheritance tax planning
- › Lasting Powers of Attorney
- › Older clients' affairs
- › Living wills
- › Trusts
- › Disabled or mentally ill clients' affairs
